

Name : _____

Accept or Except?

“Accept” means to receive, agree to, believe or endure something.

Example: Will the teachers _____ accept _____ (accept / except) Dan's request?

As a verb, “except” means not to include, and as a preposition / conjunction, it means not including or but not.

Example: Everyone had written the assignment _____ except _____ (accept / except) Kevin.

Complete each sentence with “accept” or “except”.

- 1) Kaylen is sure to _____ (accept / except) Carol's apologies.
- 2) Everyone was present in the class _____ (accept / except) Mark.
- 3) Do you _____ (accept / except) cash payments?
- 4) They didn't tell me much _____ (accept / except) that I was in the team.
- 5) Ron had _____ (accepted / excepted) our invitation to the birthday party.
- 6) The kids could play anywhere in the house _____ (accept / except) in the kitchen.
- 7) All the rooms are airy and spacious _____ (accept / except) for the study.
- 8) The police refused to _____ (accept / except) Liam's version of the incident.

Name : _____

Answer key

Accept or Except?

“Accept” means to receive, agree to, believe or endure something.

Example: Will the teachers accept (accept / except) Dan's request?

As a verb, “except” means not to include, and as a preposition / conjunction, it means not including or but not.

Example: Everyone had written the assignment except (accept / except) Kevin.

Complete each sentence with “accept” or “except”.

- 1) Kaylen is sure to accept (accept / except) Carol's apologies.
- 2) Everyone was present in the class except (accept / except) Mark.
- 3) Do you accept (accept / except) cash payments?
- 4) They didn't tell me much except (accept / except) that I was in the team.
- 5) Ron had accepted (accepted / excepted) our invitation to the birthday party.
- 6) The kids could play anywhere in the house except (accept / except) in the kitchen.
- 7) All the rooms are airy and spacious except (accept / except) for the study.
- 8) The police refused to accept (accept / except) Liam's version of the incident.