A Visit to the Horse Farm

by Katie Clark

Today Kendra was visiting Grandpa and Grandma. They owned a horse farm. Kendra was about to take a ride. She stood in the tall grass as she waited for her turn.

The sun shone brightly in the sky. The day was warm, and a soft breeze was blowing.

Grandpa finished leading the horse. "Ready to go?"

Kendra nodded and put one foot in the stirrup. Grandpa gave her a pat on the head.

"This horse is gentle and easy to take."

The pasture was green and the ride would never be boring.

"There sure is a lot of fun to be had here," Kendra said with a smile. "You can take all the time you need."
