

Teamwork

by Guy Belleranti

Goat and Cow decided to team up on a painting for the animal art contest.

"We'll make a goat team, Cow," baaa-ed Goat.

"Oh." Horse also looked sad.

Cow painted three yellow flowers between the lakes. "There," she mooed. "Now everyone will think our painting is beautiful."

Goat painted blue sky around the warm sun. "There," he baaa-ed. "Now everyone will see beautiful blue on both the top and bottom of our painting."

"Yes," baaa-ed Goat. "Teamwork is always good!"

"It moost certainly is." mooed Cow. "And now, Horse, it's your turn to paint."

Horse smiled. Swishing her tail she painted a meadow of cool green grass around the yellow flowers and blue lakes.

Teamwork

1) What kind of story is this?

This is a fable. Fables are stories teaching a life lesson and they've personified animal characters.

2) What is the difference between a parable and fable?

While both try to teach a moral, parables have humans as characters and fables basic

5) Compare and contrast the characters of Cow and Goat to the Horse's.

The Cow and Goat follow a set pattern and they don't want to experiment, while the Horse essentially deals with painting in an out-of-the-box way.

The Horse's ideas work, and together they make an amazing painting.
