Theodore Roosevelt

by Katie Clark

America's twenty-sixth president was a man named Theodore Roosevelt. He did many great things for the country. He helped many people. He helped conserve the country's natural lands. He also partnered with other countries to bring about peace.

Though he became president, he had to do it. He started as vice president when William McKinley was president. At the beginning of 1901,

However, in September 1901, he became the next president.

Roosevelt was able to go to Harvard College, but he did not finish law school.

Roosevelt was born in 1882, and in 1889 he worked with the United States Civil Service. Other jobs he held included working with the New York City Police as well as the American Navy.

These weren't all happy years for Mr. Roosevelt, though. In 1884, both his wife and his mother died. He took two years away from public life to recover from his grief. He spent that time working on his ranch in North Dakota.
