Bob has a job. It is his job to check the chairs. Bob checks each chair. He doesn't take a chance. He makes sure they are safe. He makes sure they will not break or fall.

Today will be a ball game. Bob needs ten chairs for the children who will come to see the game. Bob chooses five chairs. He checks each chair. He finds a chipped chair. He marks it with chalk.

Now, Bob has ten chairs. He arranges the chairs cheerfully. His job is done.
Bob has a job. It is his job to check the chairs. Bob checks each chair. He doesn’t take a chance. He makes sure they are safe. He makes sure they will not break or fall.

Today will be a ball game. Bob needs ten chairs for the children who will come to see the game. Bob chooses five chairs. He checks each one. He finds a chipped chair. He marks it with a chalk.

Now, Bob has ten chairs. He arranges the chairs cheerfully. His job is done.

Bob changes the chair. He bends to pick his chocolate and finds a mouse munching the cheese under the chair. He chases the mouse away. He then chooses more chairs. He checks each one. There are no broken parts.

Now, Bob has ten chairs. He arranges the chairs cheerfully. His job is done.