DIRECT OBJECT

- A direct object receives the action of a verb.
- It answers the question of what or who.

Examples:

1) Ella bought a meat sandwich.

   In the above sentence, a meat sandwich is the direct object, as it answers the question, "What did Ella buy?"

2) I met Anna.

   Here, Anna is the answer to the question, "Who did I meet?"

INDIRECT OBJECT

- An indirect object is the recipient of a direct object.
- It informs to whom or for whom something is being done.

Examples:

Jeremy bought his grandfather a walking stick.

In this example, “his grandfather” is the indirect object, hence “his grandfather” is the indirect object.
