Rewriting Predicates

Convert the two verbs into one compound verb and combine the two sentences into one.

Example: I like to dance. I like to sing too.

   I like to dance and sing.

1) The police dog barked. It also chased the robbers.

2) Mike bought flowers for Melena. Mike took her out for dinner.

3) They crossed the lane. They turned right to reach the hotel.

4) My car is big. It can accommodate six people.

5) Hannah painted pine cones. She arranged them in bouquet.

6) Aaron caught some fish. He sold them in the market.

7) Bryan kicked the ball. He passed it to his little sister.

8) We spotted a herd of deer near the river. We took a photo.

9) Maria cooked garlic chicken. She garnished it with parsley.

10) Daphne baked a cake. She decorated it with fresh fruits.
Rewriting Predicates

Convert the two verbs into one compound verb and combine the two sentences into one.

Example: I like to dance. I like to sing too.

I like to dance and sing.

1) The police dog barked. It also chased the robbers.

The police dog barked and chased the robbers.

2) Mike bought flowers for Melena. Mike took her out for dinner.

Mike bought flowers for Melena and took her out for dinner.

3) They crossed the lane. They turned right to reach the hotel.

They crossed the lane and turned right to reach the hotel.

4) My car is big. It can accommodate six people.

My car is big and can accommodate six people.

5) Hannah painted pine cones. She arranged them in a bouquet.

Hannah painted and arranged the pine cones in a bouquet.

6) Aaron caught some fish. He sold them in the market.

Aaron caught some fish and sold them in the market.

7) Bryan kicked the ball. He passed it to his little sister.

Bryan kicked the ball and passed it to his little sister.

8) We spotted a herd of deer near the river. We took a photo.

We spotted a herd of deer near the river and took a photo.

9) Maria cooked garlic chicken. She garnished it with parsley.

Maria cooked garlic chicken and garnished it with parsley.

10) Daphne baked a cake. She decorated it with fresh fruits.

Daphne baked a cake and decorated it with fresh fruits.